

HEALING FOR THE HOMES SERIES

MEN REJECT ME, BUT LORD, YOU WILL TAKE ME IN

You are my hiding place
and my shield;
I hope in Your word.

DEDICATION

This booklet is dedicated to every person who has been passed over, overlooked, unwanted, and discarded by people. You have knocked on doors that did not open, reached out hands that were not held, and offered love that was not returned. But there is One who has never rejected you — and He never will. He is calling your name right now.

A MESSAGE FROM THE FOUNDER

Dear friend,

Rejection is one of the deepest wounds the human soul can experience. It tells you that something about you is not enough — not smart enough, not attractive enough, not talented enough, not lovable enough. And when rejection comes repeatedly — from parents, from partners, from friends, from employers, from the church — it stops feeling like something that happened to you and starts feeling like something that is you.

But I am writing this booklet to tell you the truth that will demolish that lie: you are not rejected. You are chosen. The opinions of men do not define your worth. The Word of God does. And God says you are fearfully and wonderfully made, accepted in the Beloved, and worth dying for.

Let these pages reach the wound that rejection left. The healing you need is here.

With all my love in Christ,

Joshua Matthews

The Cry of the Soul

You have felt it your whole life — the sense that you are on the outside of something everyone else seems to belong to. As a child, maybe it was the group that never included you, the parent who never affirmed you, the family that made you feel like an afterthought. As an adult, maybe it was the job that passed you over, the relationship that chose someone else, the church that smiled but never truly welcomed you in.

Rejection has a voice. And when you've heard it enough times, it stops sounding like other people and starts sounding like truth: "There's something wrong with you. You don't fit. You never will."

You have learned to protect yourself. You pull back before people can push you away. You downplay your gifts so no one can criticize them. You stay in the background because the spotlight has only ever led to exposure and pain. You say you prefer being alone, but the truth is you are terrified of being rejected again.

Some of you have been rejected by the very people who were supposed to accept you unconditionally — a mother, a father, a spouse. That kind of rejection is not just emotional. It is existential. It makes you question whether you deserve to exist at all.

And here is the most painful layer: some of you believe God has rejected you too. You look at your circumstances and conclude, "If God loved me, my life wouldn't look like this." You see others being blessed and wonder what they have that you don't.

But God has a word for you today, and it comes from the deepest place of His heart:

""Can a woman forget her nursing child, and not have compassion on the son of her womb? Surely they may forget, yet I will not forget you. See, I have inscribed you on the palms of My hands.""

— Isaiah 49:15–16 (NKJV)

What the Bible Says

Some of the most powerful people in Scripture were first defined by their rejection.

David was rejected by his own family. When the prophet Samuel came to Jesse's house to anoint the next king, Jesse paraded seven of his sons before the prophet — and forgot about David entirely. He left his youngest son in the field tending sheep because he didn't even consider him a candidate (1 Samuel 16:10–11). David's own father overlooked him. But God did not:

""But the Lord said to Samuel, 'Do not look at his appearance or at his physical stature, because I have refused him. For the Lord does not see as man sees; for man looks at the outward appearance, but the Lord looks at the heart.'""

— 1 Samuel 16:7 (NKJV)

Man rejected David. God selected him. And the shepherd boy became the greatest king Israel ever had.

Joseph was rejected by his brothers, who hated him so much they discussed killing him before settling on selling him into slavery (Genesis 37). Yet the rejection was the road to the palace. Every person who counted him out became a stepping stone to his destiny.

Moses was rejected by his own people — the Israelites he was trying to lead accused him, complained about him, and even tried to return to slavery rather than follow him (Exodus 14:11–12). Yet God chose him as the deliverer of an entire nation.

Jesus Himself was the most rejected person in human history:

""He is despised and rejected by men, a Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. And we hid, as it were, our faces from Him; He was despised, and we did not esteem Him.""

— Isaiah 53:3 (NKJV)

Despised. Rejected. Unvalued. And yet He is the Savior of the entire world. Man's rejection did not determine His destiny. And it does not determine yours.

*""The stone which the builders rejected has become the chief cornerstone.
This was the Lord's doing; it is marvelous in our eyes.""*

— Psalm 118:22–23 (NKJV)

The builders — the experts, the ones who were supposed to know value when they saw it — threw the stone away. They declared it useless. And God picked it up and made it the most important piece of the entire structure.

You are that stone. The people who discarded you made a mistake. Not because you are perfect, but because they did not see what God sees. And what God sees is a cornerstone in the making.

The Root of the Pain

The Wound of Parental Rejection. The first place a child learns whether they are loved and acceptable is in the home. When a parent — through absence, neglect, criticism, or abuse — communicates to a child that they are not wanted, it creates a wound at the foundation of their identity. Developmental psychologists call this an "insecure attachment" — a pattern where the child grows up believing that love is conditional, unreliable, or unavailable.

This wound follows you into adulthood. It shows up in your relationships as clinginess, avoidance, people-pleasing, or chronic fear of abandonment. It affects your ability to receive love — even from God — because somewhere deep inside, you believe love always comes with a condition and people always eventually leave.

Social Rejection. Being excluded from social groups, passed over for opportunities, or treated as invisible in community settings activates the same brain regions as physical pain. Research from the University of Michigan showed that social rejection and physical injury are processed by the same neural pathways. Rejection literally hurts.

The Spirit of Rejection. Beyond psychology, there is a spiritual component. The enemy assigns a spirit of rejection to people God has called for great things — because if he can make you believe you are unwanted, you will never walk into the purpose God prepared for you. Rejected people hide. And hidden people cannot lead, minister, or shine.

Christ's Healing Power

The most powerful antidote to rejection is not human acceptance — it is divine acceptance. Because even the best human love is imperfect and temporary. But God's acceptance is perfect and eternal.

""To the praise of the glory of His grace, by which He made us accepted in the Beloved.""

— Ephesians 1:6 (NKJV)

You are accepted in the Beloved. Not because of your performance. Not because you earned it. Not because you were good enough. But because you are in Christ — and Christ is accepted by the Father. His acceptance covers you like a robe.

Let me tell you what God says about you — and I want you to read this slowly, because these are not platitudes. These are covenant realities:

You are chosen: "You did not choose Me, but I chose you" (John 15:16).

You are wanted: "I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore with lovingkindness I have drawn you" (Jeremiah 31:3).

You are known: "Before I formed you in the womb I knew you" (Jeremiah 1:5).

You are valued: "You are of more value than many sparrows" (Matthew 10:31).

You are His: "Fear not, for I have redeemed you; I have called you by your name; you are Mine" (Isaiah 43:1).

Every rejection you have experienced was a human verdict. God's verdict overrules all of them. People said "no." God says "yes." People said "you're not enough." God says "you are Mine, and I do not make mistakes."

""For I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels nor principalities nor powers, nor things present nor things to come, nor height nor depth, nor any other created thing, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.""

— Romans 8:38–39 (NKJV)

Nothing can separate you from His love. Not rejection. Not failure. Not anything.

Healing Prayers

A Prayer to Uproot the Spirit of Rejection

Father God, in the name of Jesus Christ, I come against every spirit of rejection that has attached itself to my life. I renounce the lies it has spoken over me: "You are not wanted. You are not enough. You don't belong." I reject those lies and I receive Your truth: I am chosen, accepted, and loved. Uproot every thought pattern that was planted by rejection. Replace it with the deep, settled knowledge of Your love. I am Yours, Lord. And You are mine. In Jesus' name, amen.

A Prayer for Healing from Parental Wounds

Lord, the wounds from my childhood run deep. The rejection I experienced from the people who were supposed to love me unconditionally has shaped the way I see myself and the way I see You. I ask You to step into those childhood memories and be the Father I needed. Speak the words I never heard. Give me the affirmation I never received. Re-parent me, Lord. Let me know that I was wanted from the moment You conceived me in Your heart. In Jesus' name, amen.

A Prayer for Confidence in God's Acceptance

Father, I confess that I have looked for acceptance in people who could not give it — and I have overlooked the acceptance You have freely given. Today, I anchor my identity in Your Word, not in the opinions of men. I am accepted in the Beloved. I am chosen before the foundation of the world. I am inscribed on the palms of Your hands. Let that truth become so real in me that no human rejection can shake it. In Jesus' name, amen.

Prophetic Declarations

"I am not rejected. I am chosen by the King of Kings."

"What men discarded, God is promoting."

"I am the stone the builders rejected — and I am becoming the cornerstone."

"My worth is not determined by people. It is determined by God."

"I belong. I am wanted. I am loved with an everlasting love."

"The spirit of rejection is uprooted from my life. I am accepted in the Beloved."

"Every closed door was God's protection, not His rejection."

"I will no longer hide my gifts out of fear. I will shine as God intended."

"God inscribed me on the palms of His hands. I am unforgettable to Him."

"The Lord takes me in. Now and forever."

Reflection & Healing

Reflect on These Questions

1. Who rejected you, and how has it shaped the way you see yourself?
2. Have you been looking for acceptance from people instead of from God? What would it mean to shift that?
3. What lies has the spirit of rejection spoken over you? Write them down — and then write God's truth next to each one.
4. Have you been hiding your gifts, your voice, or your true self because of fear of rejection? What would it look like to step out?
5. Read Ephesians 1:3–6 slowly. What does it mean to you to be "accepted in the Beloved"?
6. If God wrote you a letter about your worth, what do you believe He would say?

Beloved, men may reject you. But the Lord will take you in. He always has. He always will. You are home.

A CLOSING PRAYER

Father, I bring before You this reader who has been wounded by rejection — rejection from family, from friends, from the world. Lord, You are the God who sees the outcast and says, "Come in." You are the Father who takes in the ones the world throws away.

I ask You right now, in the name of Jesus, to uproot every spirit of rejection that has planted itself in their heart. Replace it with the deep, unshakable knowledge that they are accepted, loved, and wanted by You. Heal the wounds of abandonment. Restore their sense of worth. Let them feel Your embrace right now.

I decree they are not rejected — they are selected. In Jesus' name, amen.

AN INVITATION TO CHRIST

If you have never experienced the acceptance of Jesus Christ, this is your invitation. He is not turning you away. He is taking you in. Pray: "Lord Jesus, I have been rejected by people, but I am running to You. I believe You died for me and rose again. I surrender my life to You. Accept me as Your child. Fill me with Your Spirit. I receive Your love today. In Jesus' name, amen."
